

CAREER COMEBACK PROGRAMME

For Women Who Want To Return To Work

We know that returning to work after a career break is not easy. Many women who left their jobs for family reasons hesitate to return to work, because they wonder how they can balance their work and family responsibilities. As more companies embrace flexible and family-friendly working environments, balancing work and life is no longer impossible.

With so much responsibility on your shoulders, we understand that going back to work may be a daunting experience. But, it doesn't have to be. Today, there are many ways for you to return to the workforce, pursue your career aspirations and still be there for your family.

If you have been on your career break for more than six months, start by sharing your CV with us.
